Tyco to Acquire Exacq Technologies

On June 19th, Tyco International announced its plans to acquire Exacq Technologies, Inc. The acquisition gives Tyco a fully complementary video management portfolio to its security products business.

More information will be available in the second half of 2013 when the acquisition is expected to close, but Exacq Technologies will retain its identity. We intend to develop, sell, and support the same innovative exacqVision products in the future that we do today. We will continue working with their existing sales channel structure, and we will use the resources of Tyco to grow the company.

More information is available here.
