FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Tyco Security Products launches technology events for DACH region

Innovative intrusion, video, and access control solutions highlighted during the sessions

HEATHROW, UK. 8th May, 2014 – Tyco Security Products, part of Tyco (NYSE: TYC), the world's largest pure-play fire protection and security company, today announced a series of technology events in Germany, Austria and Switzerland. Beginning in May, the one-day sessions will provide educational opportunities on the newest technologies from Tyco Security Products available to dealers, integrators, monitoring stations and their customers in the DACH region.

The free events will allow visitors to meet with sales and technical teams from the various Tyco Security Products brands, participate in discussions, and offer feedback on the company's current technology offerings, integrations and product roadmap. In addition, there will be hands-on demonstrations of security solutions from alarm and intrusion brands DSC, Visonic, and Bentel Security, access control brands CEM Systems and Kantech, American Dynamics and Exacq Technologies for video surveillance to complement the presentations.

"While the major trade shows are important venues for Tyco Security Products, we're pleased to offer our customers the opportunity for education on our newest technologies in these smaller, more intimate settings," said Eli Williams, Regional Sales Director, Western Europe, Tyco Security Products. "Regional events offer the opportunity for in-depth conversations about specific customer concerns and how the unique integrations between our products can help mitigate risks within their organization."

The events will highlight several product introductions, including the PowerSeries Neo from DSC, the industry's most comprehensive hybrid intrusion detection system, Visonic's innovative PowerMaster 33 wireless intrusion system, and the ABSOLUTA 3.5 G3 intrusion panel from Bentel. Kantech's innovative Intevo platform, which offers integrated access control, video and intrusion to the small and medium business market, and emerald, CEM's revolutionary touch screen intelligent access terminal round out the highlights in access control. American Dynamics will present its growing portfolio of IP HD cameras, including the cost-effective Illustra Flex series, the Illustra Compact series for discrete surveillance and the powerful and accurate Illustra 625 PTZ for active surveillance environments. Exacq Technologies will demonstrate the exacqVision VMS v6.0, which makes searching for video surveillance evidence faster and more intuitive with the new SpeedSearch feature.

Each event will also feature a series of presentations where attendees will receive more in depth information from product experts. The sessions will also provide perspective on upcoming developments within the various industry-leading product lines.
